Model and I: During a two-day photoshoot of the upcoming winter line of clothing, I jumped on set to photobomb the model and he offered to pose with me instead!

Standing on set: Coming into this internship, I never realized how much work went into just simple thumbnails of photos on shopping websites.

For Kenneth Cole, a lot of work goes into the detail on how the model poses and how the clothing looks.

Outside by the door: Who knew that a photography student from Buffalo could travel the whole way across New York State for an internship!

If anyone ever has a dream or an aspiration, they definitely need to go for it just like I did and take advantage of every chance they get. I ended up moving to Brooklyn for the summer and absolutely loving every second of being in this wonderful city!

I have been learning so many things that I couldn't have learned from sitting in a classroom and I am truly thankful that I was given this opportunity to pursue my dream!
